

SEQ Rail Stabling Program

Construction update:

Construction completion and commissioning

When will construction of the Woombye stabling facility be completed?

All major construction activities for the Woombye stabling facility are expected to be completed by the end of 2016.

Will there be any further works following construction completion and before the facility is operational?

Before the facility becomes operational, it will need to be commissioned. This involves final testing and switching the signals into operational mode.

Commissioning will occur during a scheduled track closure on the North Coast line in early 2017.

Residents and rail users will be notified of the works and the closure in advance.
